Justice George W. Macrae

Imagined likeness of Justice George Macrae

Former Justice George Macrae is the fourth Supreme Court Justice and is one of the mysteries of the Court. Little information has been uncovered about him. He served for one year, 1847.

This painting [left] of the justice is entirely imaginary. No actual photograph or portrait of him has ever been identified. There is no evidence of the date and place of his birth or of his family history.

Macrae first came into prominence in Florida in 1842, when President John Tyler appointed him United States Attorney for the Southern District.

Two years later, Macrae won election to the territorial senate from South Florida. When another candidate declined appointment in 1847 as circuit judge for the southern circuit, Governor William Moseley turned to Macrae, whom the legislature had also previously considered for the position.

After serving only a single year as circuit judge/Supreme Court justice, Macrae was replaced by Florida House of Representatives Speaker Joseph Lancaster. Macrae's activities after leaving the court are as uncertain as his origins.

The painting of the Justice hanging in @FLCourts bldg in Tallahassee is a composite created by noted Tallahassee historical artist Claribel B. Jett, who operated a portrait studio in @Visit_Tally from 1962-74. Jett used photos of Macrae's descendants to create the likeness. 3/4

Dear Mr. Cutler, and everyone,

Claribel Jett came to the Florida Supreme Court Building to add her name to the painted portraits in the lower right corner of each of the four that she had created in 1984 when Chief Justice Joseph Boyd commissioned the portraits. I never recorded the date of her visit, which was likely late 2006 or perhaps up to a year later (she died May 2, 2008). The portraits she created did not have an artist's signature until then, years after they were painted and put on display at the court.

She spoke to me about the Macrae portrait while she was in the act of painting her name on the justice portrait. Again, I did not record the conversation, so my memory of the event is all I can contribute. What I remember her saying was that she had never found any information about or image of him so she started by painting "an uncle" of hers and dressed the resulting figure in a fanciful costume. (I note that the clothing worn by the "Macrae" figure is not historically accurate.)

Ms. Jett was quite elderly and physically infirm. She had the help of another older woman named Iona Skuce, who handed her the tiny brush and held her elbow while Ms. Jett added her signature to each of the four paintings, Ms. Skuce reloading the brush with white paint frequently. I note that several of the signatures are now darkened to an off-white and the paint used may not have been artist's oil paint or acrylic paint.

Claribel Jett was well-known in Tallahassee as a painter of historical scenes and also spent many years enhancing photographic portraits with oil paint when clients requested that.

My memory for dates has been faulty in the matter of Claribel Jett. I could not have been working at the Florida Supreme Court (started there in 2005) when she died in 1987. Instead I had to have been working as a curator at the Museum of Florida History (started there in 1984). The portrait signing I have remembered would have had to have taken place in 1986 (not 2006) and I would have had prior knowledge that she was going to do that signing and gone across the street, from the museum to the court to meet her and her assistant, Ms. Skuce, for the event. My apologies for mixing up the dates. I have confidence in my memory of the event, however.

PRINCE WILLIAM.

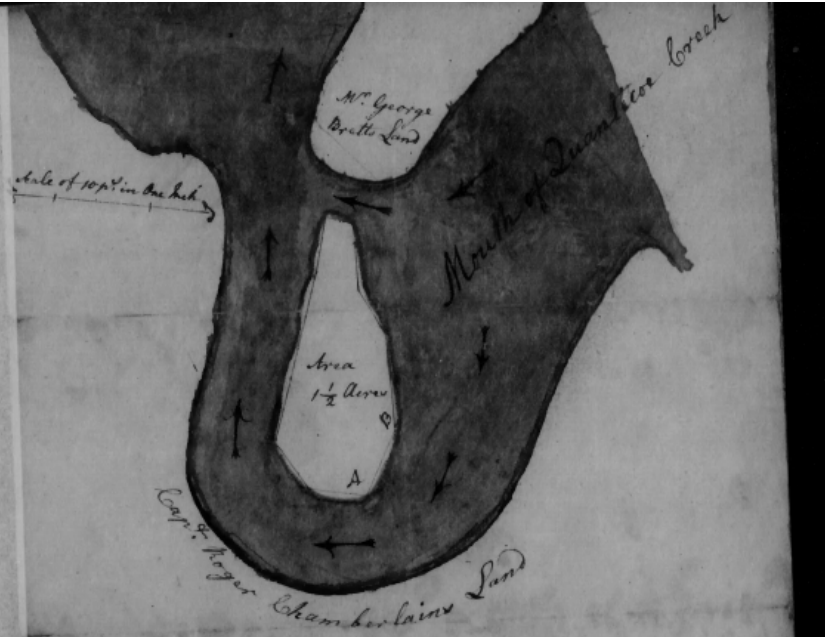

PRINCE WILLIAM was formed in 1730, from Stafford and King George. It is about 35 miles long, and 12 wide. The Potomac forms its eastern boundary. Pop. in 1840, whites 4,867, slaves 2,767, free colored 510; total, 8,144.

Brentsville, the county-seat, is situated 101 miles from Richmond, and 33 n. of Fredericksburg, in the heart of the county, at the head of Occoquan River. It is a small village, containing 3 stores and about 20 dwellings. The county buildings are handsomely situated on a public square, containing 3 acres. Thoroughfare and Liberia are small places in the county, containing each a few dwellings. Dumfries is situated on Quantico creek, near the Potomac. It was once the county-seat; but in 1822 the courts were removed to Brentsville, and the old court-house is converted into an Episcopal church. Dumfries is a very old town, and once had considerable commerce; but from a combination of causes it has gone rapidly to decay, and many of the houses have been removed out of town.

Occoquan, situated near the mouth of a river of the same name, was established by law in 1804. It contains a large cotton factory, an extensive flouring mill, several stores, and about 40 dwellings. A handsome bridge is erected over the river at this place. The Occoquan here has a fall of 72 feet in one and a half miles, affording excellent sites for manufactories. This is the market for many of the most important shad and herring fisheries on the Potomac. The scenery around this village is uncommonly picturesque.

Commonwealth vs Burgess

Dear Sir,

I have just returned home and learn with astonishment and regret that the record and petition in the case of the Commonwealth vs Burgess has not reached the General Court, and that court has adjourned .

The very precautions which I had used to secure the safe transmission of this paper to Richmond, have defeated my object. I had originally intended to commit the paper to the mail boy, but I was induced by the repeated objections of Judge Dade, not to trust a matter of such momentous importance to a mode of conveyance in itself precarious and uncertain. According with this suggestion and that which myself as well as others considered most prudent & entrusted the record and petition to the care of a gentlemen in Dumfries who was about to go to Fredericksburg who informed me that Mr. P. Harrison would go to Richmond in the course of that week (which was the 1st of the Session of the Superior Court) would take it down. I wrote by him a letter to Mr. H. enclosing the paper in question, requesting him to take charge of it; and moreover, if he should not go to Richmond immediately, that he would put it in the hands of some gentleman going in the stage, or else send it by mail immediately. On Thursday of that week I saw Judge Dade in Dumfries who informed me that there had been no court & that he would be obliged to go down. The next day I went to Fredericksburg and discovered that Mr. H. had not sent the papers. He informed me that he had met with no opportunity of sending it down; that, from the circumstance of the court not having met on the previous ---day, it would certainly sit the _____ week or the first or second day of which he would go down, and would take the paper and bring it before the General Court.

You will thus perceive that I have used all diligence to transmit this paper, that anyone would have thought necessary under the circumstances. I could not go to Richmond myself that was not to be expected, as I have not received and do not expect to obtain any compensation for the services which I have rendered; or may render, in behalf of the unfortunate wretch who employed me to defend him.

I a case like this I do not doubt that the Execution will upon application respite sentence of death passed by the court below, until the petitioner of the prisoner for a writ of error can be acted upon by the General Court, at its next session. I have therefore referred a petition to the Executive for a respite, which I enclose. Please take it to Richmond with you and present it to the Executive, and explain the circumstances alluded to the Governor & Council.

I am not absolutely certain that the General Court has adjourned from the information I have read. But have supposition should cause me to prepare for the event I might be again disappointed. With assurances of my regard I am in hast,

Yours with respect
George W. Macrae

Commonwealth vs Burgess

Dear Sir,

Enclosed I transmit to you, by the politeness of Mr. Lawson, a transcript of the Record of the proceedings and judgment had in the case of the Commonwealth vs Burgess, in the Superior Court of Prince William County – Having been informed by Mr. L. that you are about to go to Richmond. I take the liberty of requesting that you will take charge of the above mentioned transcript and place it in the hands of one of the members of the General Court, in order that the application for a writ of error to reverse the judgment of the court below, which is superadded thereto may be considered and attend upon at some convenient period during its present session.

Being desirous of preparing a written argument on this case, for the purpose of exhibiting it to the General Court through the same medium with the transcript of the Record and not having had a convenient opportunist of doing so heretofore. I shall be glad if you will intimate to the judge to whom you may deliver the transcript of the record, that it is the wish if the Council for the Applicant that the consideration of his petition may be postponed to as late a period of the session of the Court as may be convenient, in order that his council may have time and opportunity to prepare an argument and transmit it to Richmond to be submitted to the consideration of the court along with the application for a writ of Error.

I presume that frequent opportunities will be afforded of doing this before the end of the first week of the session of the court, through the medium of the stage communication between Fredericksburg to Richmond – About that time therefore the argument may be expected. Should it not be received the court must act upon the marked transcript and petition, unless some member of the bar in Richmond, impelled by motions of humanity (and these alone have prompted me to this course) will act the part of the good Samaritan in behalf of the unfortunate wretch who now lies in our county prison sinking under the horrors of approaching destruction.

It is with great difference sir that I pursue the course which I have adopted in behalf of the prisoner: but when I consider that I am one of his counsel, and much more when I believe that his is a case of homicide which probably ought not to be capitally punished agreeably to the meaning and intention of the _____. I cannot hesitate to encounter the responsibility and trouble which attend the proceeding, however sensibly I may feel their might and inconvenience.

Not having had an opportunity of consulting with Col. Cannon my associate in this case, owing to our mutual absence _____ county, is the reason why I have not _____ an argument to be presented with the petition. My _____ for a safe conveyance of the transcripts and _____ me to send them to you now without the argument.

Please tender my respects to Mr. H. and accept the assurances of the esteem ____.

Yours very respectfully
Geo. W. Macrae

Commonwealth vs Burgess

Sir,

Permit the occasion to warrant the liberty which I shall take in making you this communication, and soliciting an enquiry which, under other circumstances, might be deemed perhaps impertinent, if not disrespectful.

The transmission of the record of the proceedings in the case of the Commonwealth vs Joseph Burgess, tried in the last October Superior Court of this county, was entrusted to a gentleman of the bar residing in Fredericksburg, who was so kind as to offer to take charge of the papers and present them before the General Court which was then about to sit. The court did not sit, and you are aware that, on that ground, the Executive indulge the prisoner with a respite next July.

I had presumed that the record had been lodged with the proper officer, but upon enquiry of the above mentioned gentleman, he informs me that he merely lodged the papers with the Executive, and suggests that they may still be in the hands of the clerk of the Executive Council.

Although I seriously doubt that the papers have in this reached their proper destination, yet pardon me sir, that the responsibility and consequent solicitude which I feel, as one of the counsel of the prisoner, tempt me to obtrude upon you the enquiry whether the record above mentioned has been lodged with the proper officer of the general court, and further to make the request that you will cause information to be given me immediately, directed to Dumfries, Prince William County in relation to this matter.

I have the honor to be Sir, with the highest consideration.

Your obedient servant
George W. Macrae

FLORIDA.

From information received from Tallahassee, the seat of government for West Florida, a very flattering account is given of the character of the soil.— The writer states that, as far as he has explored, he has seen no land that may not be cultivated to advantage, and a great portion of it first rate. The greatest objection that exists to the country, is the extraordinary number of ponds that abound through all the rich lands. Many of them are said to furnish good fish, and are supposed to be fed by subterraneous streams. From these ponds run as fine rivulets of pure fresh water as are seen in any section of our country. From this circumstance, it is the general opinion that they will not be likely to generate those fevers usually to be apprehended from stagnant waters. There is every reason to believe that the sugar cane and Sea Island cotton will succeed in that country. Should the country prove to be healthy, it is represented as one of the most eligible regions of the United States.

Virginia Governors Executive Papers – John Tyler Esq.
Arms for his Company

To John Tyler Esq. Governor of the Commonwealth of Virginia
Dear Sir,

Sometime during the last winter I had the honor of submitting to the Executive of Virginia an application for arms on behalf of a Volunteer Artillery Company in the 2nd Regt. And 2nd Division Va. Militia, commanded by myself a Capt. The application and the grounds upon which it was urged will be found I presume filed in the Executive office, as also a bond to the Executive signed by myself and others as a security for the said preservation of such arms as the Executive might grant.

I am aware that the former application was rejected by the Executive upon grounds which I need not recapitulate, and which I do not purpose or which to controvert. It is merely the object of this communication. To modify the application of the last winter, under the hope on the part of the Company, that the Executive will make such conditional grant of the arms as will at once obviate their principal objections and difficulties, and prove acceptable to the Company.

It will appear from the Requisition a Com. of Ordinance that we ask for 1 piece of Artillery & 75 swords, with suitable equipment. Should the Executive continue to doubt the policy of allowing arms, (under the circumstances upon which our application is urged) because of the expense of equipment and transportation, the company would be satisfied to receive the piece of ordnance and 70 or 75 swords without equipments, and they agree to pay the cost of transportation. Under this modification of their former application they indulge the hope that the Executive will make no difficulty in giving them the only means of improvement in the Military Art, and the chief guarantee if the prosperity of the Corps.

I would further mention that two pieces of Artillery were formerly granted to a company of artillery raised in the adjacent County of Stafford in the 2nd Regt. And 2nd Division of Artillery – Believing that one piece of cannon to a company would be sufficient for the purpose of exercise and instruction. I will venture respectfully to suggest to the Executive the expediency of ordering one of the Pieces now in possession of the above named Company to the County, for the use of my Company. Such an engagement would be satisfactory to my company as well as economical on the part of the Commonwealth.

I have the honor to be, sir, with great respect your obedient servant

MISCELLANEOUS.

A Meeting of the Citizens of Prince William, was held at the Court House of the County, on the 3d day of July, 1826, to consider the propriety of adopting measures to procure contributions for the relief of Mr. Jefferson; and the Hon. W. A. G. Dade being called to the Chair, and P. D. Dawe appointed Secretary, the following Preamble and Resolutions were offered by John Macrae, Esq. and unanimously adopted:

The people of Prince William being apprised of the pecuniary embarrassment of Thomas Jefferson, and of the efforts which are making by his countrymen to raise a fund for his relief, avail themselves of the occasion to express their high and grateful sense of his public services, their sympathy in his present difficulty, and their concurrence in the general sentiment of United America, that it would be unworthy of her to permit a debt which is properly his country's and not his own to stretch from one of the most illustrious of the founders of her independence, and of her Republics, his paternal inheritance, and philosophical retreat, endeared to his fellow citizens as well as to him by the most interesting associations, and to deprive him of those comforts which are necessary to impart peace and serenity to the twilight of his age. Policy and justice alike forbid that a public benefactor should be deemed less entitled to indemnification or reward than a Monarch's minion, or a private man's patron, and that he who by patriotic daring, or studious skill, has saved millions for his country from the extortion of illegitimate power, should be suffered, in consequence of his services or even of his misfortunes, to want an Obolus. The citizens of this county have witnessed with sincere satisfaction the recognition of this sentiment by the people of the United States, and the manner in which they have chosen to express it; thus demonstrating the gratitude, not of a government, but of a nation, and wiping off the last stigma of Republics; in rewarding past, supplying incentives to future heroic devotion, and patriotic sacrifices; substituting for a pernicious and degrading pensionary dependence, a retribution which does honor to the receiver as well as to the giver; and uniting in the high award, the intelligence, impartiality, and justice of historical judgment with the general sympathy of contemporary regard. Henceforward, let the charge of ingratitude for public services apply only to tyrants, who exercise power as a right and not as a trust—who live for themselves, and not for their country; and may the story of a Belisarius and of a Columbus, be found only in the annals of despotism.

Therefore, Resolved, That, in the opinion of this meeting, the debt of Thomas Jefferson ought to be considered and adopted as the debt of his country; and that Messrs. John Hooe, John Gibson, John W. Tyler, Charles Hunton, P. D. Dawe, John Macrae, Robert Hamilton, Henry A. Barron, Michael Cleary, Willoughby W. Tebbs, John W. Williams, John Hutchinson, Moses Cockrell, Redmond Foster, Chas. S. Carter, Wm. A. G. Dade and George W. Macrae, be a Committee to receive, and apply towards the discharge of that debt, in the manner by them deemed best, such contributions, not exceeding five dollars for each individual, as may be offered by the people of this county.

Resolved, That the said Committee do make report of their proceedings in the premises, at this place, on the first day of the next August Court of this County.

Resolved, That a copy of the foregoing preamble and resolutions be published in some newspaper, or newspapers of this state, and of the District of Columbia.

Petition of the Bar of PW for Pardon of Dennis McCarty

To the Governor and Council of the Commonwealth of Virginia

The Subscribing members of the Bar of the Superior Court of Prince William County, present at the trial of Dennis McCarty - found guilty of murder in the second degree on the body of James Beatty – beg leave to recommend the said Dennis McCarty to mercy of the Executive – they consider his case as one in which, under all circumstances the power of pardoning ought to be exercised – and that rational doubts may be entertained whether the act on which he was convicted, amounted to more than justifiable homicide.

At the request of John Gibson Esq. who prosecuted for the Commonwealth in the Superior Court of the County of Prince William. I united with him in the prosecution of Dennis McCarty charged with the murder of James Beatty I engaged in the prosecution with strong prejudices against McCarty owing from the representations I had received of the circumstances under which the homicide had been committed, after a patient examination of the testimony as will in behalf of the prisoner as of the Commonwealth so strong was the impression made upon my mind that it was a case of justifiable homicide that I abandoned the prosecution.

William B. Giles Esquire, Governor of Virginia, Richmond

Sir:

Having been informed by Mr. Jno. Williams of this place that he is about to make application to the Executive for the office of Notary Public for this county which has become vacated by the resignation of Mordecai B. Sinclair Esq. the hitherto incumbent, it gives me pleasure to say of Mr. Williams that he is a gentleman whose purity of character, exemplary moral, and correct habits would guarantee fidelity in the discharge of the duties of any office which he might be appointed to fill; and that several years service as deputy clerk in the Clerk's Office of this county has given him an acquaintance with practical law and legal transactions, which, with his legal information derived from "the books", will I'm sure amply qualify him to fill the office of Notary Public with requisite ability.

With great respect

To His Excellency Wm. B. Giles

Sir:

I had the favour to receive your letter of the 26th of October & 3rd of November last. I was last seventh proceeding in the executive of the commission assigned me by the Executive when I was arrested by your letter of the said ulto I have however ascertained that a satisfactory title cannot be at present obtained for the land originally selected as a site for the Arsenal; and no proceedings have as yet been taken, or even promised to perfect the title. So much of the Land for the other site recommended by Judge Green & myself as belonged to Lee's heirs, has been lately sold under a decree of the Superior Court of Chancery for the Fredericksburg District, & has been bought by a Gentleman, who it is understood, will convey it to the Commonwealth for the purpose mentioned at the maximum price fixed by the Executive. The sale has been affected under the provision of the Act concerning Guardians, & 1st Rev. Code, 409-10, and I am informed, upon good authority, that all the proceedings have been regular. I shall, however, obtain from the Chancery office a copy of the Record in the first, & examine it myself. This Land & Lee's heirs embrace only a part of the site recommended; and the other part, which is very important to the defence, & convenience of the establishment, belongs to Mr. Wm. Horner of Warrenton, who will not take less than 100 dollars per acre for it. This part contains from 4 to 6 acres. It lies between Lee's land & the Turnpike Road & forms the northern Rope of the hill chosen for the site of the Arsenal. This with so much of Lee's land as I think should belong to the establishment, will probably embrace about fifteen acres. Hereto enlarge the boundaries to the extent to include a spring at the foot of the hill, which supplies good water, & will be convenient in the erection of the Buildings; and any surplus which may be hereafter ascertained can be sold by the Commonwealth for much more than it will cost her. The important object to be attained by the purchase of so extensive a surface will be the repulsion to a proper distance of tippling houses & other places of corrupt resort, and the complete separation, when necessary of the soldiers from the Citizens. Besides, it would afford space for the operation of industry & for exercises with a view to health & efficiency. Large gardens & extensive walks, elegantly embellished, might be formed without any expense; and I need hardly add that they would evidently contribute to the health & comfort of the Guard as well as to its efficiency.

As Mr. Horner will not sell at your maximum & with a view to clear all difficulty or doubt on the care to be given to respectfully suggest the expediting of recommending to the General Assembly the passage of an Act authorizing the condemnation, in the usual mode, of so much land as may be required; with a profit, however, in order to meet the contingency & excessive verbration, that the Executive might then take it, or not, in his discretion. I am authorized, indeed to say that the law need not be any objection to the creation of the arsenal at either of the sites recommended; further the Citizens of Warrenton would make up any difference between the sum which the owners demand & that which the Executive would allow, but I presume it will not be considered compatible with the dignity or honour of a great Commonwealth to haggle for a few acres, or to impose a public charge upon a few individuals.

I am Sir with great respect your obedient servant

Sir,

As I am not a subscriber to the "Enquirer, I did not see till yesterday your advertisement of the large Map of Virginia. I was in Philadelphia last summer when this map was sec'd by The Philadelphia Society there. I applied to the Enquirer for a copy but he had none for sale. I fear my application is now too late – but if you could procure a copy, and inform me you have laid it by for me, I will immediately transmit you the $20 for it – And set the favour of my friend Captain Maerae when he attends the Anti - Jackson convention next month to bring it up with him – or it might be sent by Captain Jenkins in his return back to Alexandria, - Relying on your goodness to address this trouble.

Effingham Manor

This well cared for Tidewater-style plantation house was built in the late 1700s by William Alexander, a great-grandson of John Alexander, for whom Alexandria is named. Effingham's smokehouse, slave quarters, a very early terraced garden, and a blacksmith shop remain. The house has outstanding interior woodwork. The historic buildings on the property were restored by Dr. Eng of Cleveland, Ohio, who used Effingham as a summer home.

In 2008 the land surrounding the Effingham house was significantly reduced from 494 acres to 13 acres as part of a subdivision of the property and development for single-family dwellings.

In Dec. 2015 Effingham was sold with plans to turn Effingham into a winery with an opening date in summer 2016. www.effinghammanor.com

FOR THE CONSTITUTIONAL WHIG.

At a meeting of the members of the bar of Prince William county, and of the Justices of the County Court, and the Officers of the Superior and County Courts of said county, held at Brentsville, on the 1st day of November Court, 1829, for the purpose of expressing the deep regret and sorrow entertained by them on the occasion of the decease of the Honorable Wm. Resolved, That the members of this meeting will wear crape on the left arm for one month, as an evidence of the respect which they entertained for the deceased while living, and as an indication of the sorrow they feel at his death.

Resolved, That the Secretary furnish a copy of the foregoing resolutions to the family of the deceased, and that they be communicated to the Richmond Enquirer and Constitutional Whig, and to the Editors of the papers in Fredericksburg and Warrenton, for publication.

FREDERICKSBURG, Feb. 29, 1840.

To the Editor of the Alexandria Gazette:

Since my arrival here, this evening, from Richmond, I have been informed that I have been announced, or nominated, through the your columns, as a candidate to represent Prince William, in the next Legislature of Virginia. With a due sensibility to the favorable opinions of any portion of my fellow citizens, I must beg leave, through your paper, to say that I am not a candidate; and that I could not, under any circumstances, consent to become one. I have not seen your paper in my absence from Prince William; but, not doubting the information to which I have referred, I consider it due, as well to the people of my County as to myself, thus promptly to make you this communication.

“My hunch is that Macrae was a Virginian. Tyler of course was a Virginian and he was continually favoring applicants with Virginia ties. One clue to Macrae’s background was that it will be recalled that Tyler was a “state’s rights” Whig, which in a sense is a contradiction in terms. (Remember he was put on the ticket with W. H. Harrison because of criticism of Jackson during the secession crisis. Tyler was eventually written out of the Whig Party after falling out with Henry Clay) This may be why there was uncertainty about Macrae’s political affiliation at the time as Manley and Brown’s book states on p. 127.”

MEETING IN PRINCE WILLIAM COUNTY.

A Democratic meeting was held at the Court-house of Prince William County, pursuant to notice, on Monday, the 31 day of January, 1842, in view of the Democratic Convention proposed to be held in Richmond on the 2nd of February ensuing. The meeting did not take place until night, having been delayed by the intervention of court business: it was, nevertheless, well attended, and by members of the party from every section of the county.

Geo. W. Maerae, Esq., called the meeting to order, and, in a brief but satisfactory address, explained the objects for which the meeting had been convened; reviewing in the course of his remarks, the action of parties, and the varied positions of the President and other prominent individuals of the electoral majority through the brief period which had intervened since the Whig "standard" had been borne to the Presidency. Among other remarks, he (in substance) disavowed for himself any existing preferences as to men, recommended a spirit of moderation combined with firmness, and urged a rally of all true Democrats, whether of the one or the other side in the late Presidential contest, to the support of those great, free principles of the Constitution and its Democratic Administration, which had triumphed in the election of Thomas Jefferson, but which were, nevertheless, destined to a perpetual struggle, and were now believed to be jeopardized in a critical conflict that called for the voice and the action of the People. He bespoke a continuance of the spirit of liberality and favor with which the Democracy had hitherto awaited the full development of the course of the President. He had watched his course with anxiety, had been grateful for much he had done in view of the principles we professed, and was duly sensible of the unprecedented difficulties which environed and embarrassed his position during the late Extra Session. But the President had been relieved in a great measure from these embarrassments, as well by the termination of that session, as by the circumstances attending its conclusion, and we had, therefore, looked to the opening of the present session for more satisfactory indication of the eventual course of himself and those who might be associated with him in stations which, in the action of Government, made them more particularly responsible for the conduct of our national affairs. With paramount interest we had awaited the promised recommendation touching the all-absorbing question of financial administration, which in the aspect which it had been made to assume, by its affiliation with others of no less importance, formed the main ground of separation between the Democratic party, and that largest division of the late Whig organization designated by the terms "Federal" and "Latitudinarian." Upon the issue of this question had been made to hinge the success of the system of measures urged by the leaders of the Whig majorities at the late Extra Session. The failure of that issue, on their part, by the repeated constitutional intervention of the President, had averted the consummation of that "system," (yelept "American,") and happily afforded the People of the United States an opportunity of forming, for themselves, a judgment upon its merits—one which he trusted they had already indicated by their recent votes and otherwise. Congress had again met, and the President's Message, with their proceedings thereon, were doubtless familiar to every member of the meeting. An individual of the late Cabinet, who with all his political distinction and abilities, had yet never been acceptable to the Democracy of the Union, who had formerly stood foremost in the ranks of the old Federal party PROFER, and latterly was second only to ONE in the lead of the more formidable modern array of LA-

TITUDINARIANS—not only occupied the chief place among the constitutional advisers of the President, but stood forth, without contradiction, the leading sponsor, if not the author of the plan of a mixed institution of finance, banking and moneyed supremacy and control—to say no more of its scope and tendencies—which alarmed many, and, so far, had met the favor of not one of any party or sect in Congress. There were other features in the existing political phasis of the National Executive; which, coupled with what had been mentioned, were calculated to create solicitude and doubt in the minds of the people in this country, as to what might be expected at the hands of those who undertook to administer the Government, and advise its legislation. Under these circumstances, he thought it well that the people should begin to advise among themselves as to the course which it might be their duty and interest to pursue in relation to the matters and questions involving the public weal and public liberty, which now distracted the halls of legislation, and agitated the country at large. He therefore thought it well that the Democracy of this State should confer, through the medium of county meetings and of their Delegates in a State Convention, and adopt such proceedings as the times demanded. Such he understood to be the design of the proposed Convention; to further which, this meeting had, doubtless, been called by those who had published the notice. He disclaimed any purpose of mere opposition to the President—he should judge him by his course—would support whatever he approved in his administration—and would be glad if he could yield it his full confidence. More could not be asked—more could not be conceded by any member of the Democratic party. He moved that Col. John Gibson be appointed Chairman of the meeting.

Whereupon, Col. Gibson was unanimously called to the Chair; and, on motion of B. E. Harrison, Esq., Dr. John Gray was appointed Secretary. Colonel G. then briefly addressed the meeting, in appropriate terms, seconding the views of Mr. Macrae, who thereupon offered the following resolutions, which were unanimously adopted:

1. Resolved, as the opinion of this meeting, That, in view of the political events and questions now developing, touching the administration of our National affairs, there exist not diminished, but rather increased motives for vigilance, activity, and union on the part of the Democracy of the U. States:

Resolved, farther, That whatever we may be disposed to concede in regard to questions of mere expediency, we will yield nothing in derogation of Democratic principles, based upon the Constitution and growing out of its bona fide administration.

2. Resolved, That this meeting fully concur in the spirit and design of the proposal to hold a Democratic Convention in Richmond on the 2d of February ensuing, as disclosed in the various proceedings which have been published, respecting the same; and that the Chair nominate such persons and such number as he shall think proper, to represent the Democracy of this county in the proposed Convention.

D. Ratcliffe, E-q., then rose, and after a brief address, in which he re-enforced the views of the Chairman, and the mover of the resolutions,—he observed, (in substance,) that he had been made aware that a gentleman, now in the meeting, who had voted for Gen. Harrison, had expressed a disposition to co-operate with the Democratic party in this county and State, in the views and purposes which had been indicated in the proceedings of this meeting. He was pleased to be so informed, and, uniting in the wishes intimated by several members, he would invite that gentleman to address the meeting.

Mr. Macrae, having seconded the invitation on behalf of himself and the meeting—

Dr. A. H. Saunders then rose and responded to it in terms which did justice to his position and the motives which dictated it. He gave an independent and unequivocal exposition of his political course and opinions—stated (in substance) that when a minor he had advocated the election of Wm. H. Crawford, against Jno. Quincy Adams, and had given his first electoral vote for Andrew Jackson—that he had separated, on principle, from the party which continued to support the latter and his successor—that he had united, on principle, in the support of General Harrison, under the honest belief, that he would carry out Democratic principles and reform in his administration, and that he lamented his death, as the disappointment of his hopes, founded upon the Whig ascendancy—that he had always been opposed to a U. S. Bank, a Tariff for protection, and to Internal Improvements by the General Government, and disapproved the leading measures of the Whig majorities, and the course of their leaders, at the late Extra Session. He intimated his concurrence in the proceedings of the meeting, the resolutions adopted, and the views of the mover—and his disposition to co-operate in the measures they contemplated.

Mr. McRae said (in substance) that it gave him great pleasure to express his concurrence in the principles just expressed, and the manly and becoming spirit in which they had been avowed by Dr. Saunders; to which he did not think any Democrat could object. It was by no means a rare instance in the present political conjuncture; and he would beg the use of the occasion to remark, as he had often done elsewhere, that he was sure there were very many of the late Whig association, particularly in Eastern Virginia, who entertained like opinions with Dr. S., and who would not be led, or lured by that party designation into an allegiance to anti-Democratic leaders or measures.

Col. Gibson also expressed his gratification at what had fallen from Dr. S.; and said (in substance) that his satisfactory exposition of his political opinions, and his acknowledgment of the disappointment of the anticipations that led him to sustain the flag which he had said he had gloried in supporting, under the lead of Gen. Harrison, entitled him to the confidence of the meeting, and of the Democratic party. With Dr. S., he went for principles, rather than men; and was at present uncommitted as to names, or otherwise; saving his principles as a Democrat.

The Chair then submitted the following nomination of delegates, which was unanimously concurred in:

MacRae, George W., July 28, 1842 (1).

Dear Mr. Cutler. Thank you for your e-mail. I have been away and only now am able to answer your e-mail. I'm afraid I can't be much help to your search for more information on George W. Macrae. My hunch is that Breana referred you to me because of my study of crime and punishment in Florida, A Rogue's Paradise, and because of my research on U. S. Attorney William A. McRea, who was murdered in Key West in 1829. As far as I know George Macrea (spelled differently) is not related to McRea. George Macrae is indeed a shadowy figure. His background is unknown as it was to me when I wrote Rogue's Paradise. I looked up Macrea's U. S. attorney commission by President John Tyler in the Territorial Papers, p. 526, vol. 26 and there is no statement as to his native state. (Usually this is included in the commission).

The "go to" source for information on the Florida Supreme Court (which I am sure you are already aware of is Manley and Brown, The Florida Court of Florida and Its Predecessor Courts, 1821-1917.) There is a good bio sketch of Macrea, using available sources at that time on pages 127-31. The passage does an excellent job of integrating Macrea into the political-judicial milieu of the time. Of course this study was done before access to many of the online newspapers and genealogy sources that are available now.

There is a source that may turn up some answers to Macrae's background:

National Archives Record Group 59: Records of the Department of State.

Letters of Application and Recommendation During the Administrations of Martin Van Buren, William Henry Harrison and John Tyler, 1837-1845. Microfilm Publication M-687.

I have used this source from time to time. It is pretty well indexed and contains the original correspondence of applicants and recommendation to federal positions including U. S. attorneys and judgeships. There is often some interesting information on applicants and contained in these. Of course, this is microfilm collection but there is a possibility some of the reels are available online.

Key West, Dec. 23^d 1843

Sir

The accompanying short statement of the proceedings had upon the petition of Samuel Sanderson to the Superior Court of the Southern District of Florida for decree in bankruptcy on his behalf, is submitted for the information of the Solicitor of the Treasury and for such instructions as he may deem the case requires under the Circumstances.

I learn from Petitioner's Counsel that his debt to the United States originated as follows:— Having afforded relief to certain recaptured African slaves who were wrecked on this coast, and afterwards taken possession by U. S. Government, & sent back to Africa, the Petitioner applied to Congress for compensation in lieu of salvage, which an act accordingly passed allowing him about $2200. in full of his services in the premises. The sum appropriated was paid to Hon. Ch^s Downing late Collector from this Territory under a power of Attorney from said land to said Downing. But after giving said power, and under a purport that it had not been availed of, said Sanderson executed a similar one to Tho^s Jefferson Smith mentioned in his petition, availing that to Mr Downing, by some mistake, the said sum was also paid to said who, it is represented, still holds ^{$1505.40} the same. Thereupon United States sued Sanderson for the amount twice by Mistake, and obtained judgments for the same.

Mean time Mr Downing, it appears, paid over the amount reqd. by him to Sanderson's Attorney in Key West, through whom hands the judgments are reduced to the sum alleged in the petition, the amount paid thereon by his said Attorney being credited upon the papers. This is the substance of the statement of the petitioner's Counsel as understood by me. I shall my immediate opportunity making further enquiry, I submit it for your consideration with the further information from the same source that, excepting the funds in Mr Smith's hands reqd. for his use, said Sanderson is wholly insolvent as stated in his petition. If Mr Smith be good for the amt. reqd. by him, or so much as will discharge the judgment to Sanderson, the latter, in that case, need be paid to the U. S. under the proceeding in bankruptcy, &c. It will be for the Department to consider of the alternative remedy of U. S. to Sanderson, Smith and the Officer of the Government who caused the appropriation to be paid twice in wrong of the trust reposed in him, if such be the fact.

I have the honor to be, with great respect,
Your obedient servant, in haste, packet therein referred to, for his Excellency the Governor of the Bahama islands.

I am directed by the President to authorize and request you to take all proper steps for reclaiming and bringing back to the United States the individuals supposed to have been concerned in the robbery and murder above mentioned.

For this purpose, it will be necessary to repair to Nassau with as little delay as possible, either in person or by deputy, prepared to prove the identity of the fugitives in question, and to exhibit such evidence of their criminality as shall be deemed sufficient to meet the requirements of the treaty.

To enable you, so far as this department is possessed of the means of doing so, to judge as to the return and form of testimony to be adduced before the British authorities, I transmit to you a printed copy of the British act giving effect to the 10th article of the recent treaty, together with a copy of a printed paper prepared at this department.

You will, of course, confer freely with Mr. Macrae, the district attorney of the United States at Key West, on the subject of this letter; and in case any doubt should arise in your mind as to the course proper to be pursued in the prosecution of this matter, you will advise with him concerning it.

It would be well to communicate to the Governor of Florida the substance of this letter, and to request his co-operation, as well as that of the other civil authorities of the Territory, so far as it may be desirable in contributing to effect the object in view.

Mr. Macrae to Mr. Upshur.—[COPY.]

OFFICE OF ATTORNEY OF THE UNITED STATES FOR SOUTHERN JUDICIAL DISTRICT OF FLORIDA,

Key West, December 6, 1843.

SIR: I had the honor of addressing a communication to the Hon. D. Levy, delegate from this Territory, at Washington, informing him that two sets of indictments had been found, at the late November term of the superior court for the district, against eight negroes, or colored men, for the robbery of John H. Geeren and others, and for the murder of said Geeren, at Key Biscayne, in the county of Dade, in said district; and requesting him to advise you of the fact, and to inform you that copies of said indictment (not then made out) would, if ready, be transmitted by the ensuing mail, running overland from Tampa to St. Augustine, with proper affidavits accompanying the same.

Not having received said copies in time for the Tampa mail, I have held them until now; and in the mean time the mail packet from Charleston has arrived, after a very short passage, bringing the requisition of the American Government, on the British authorities at Nassau, for the surrender of seven of said negroes, accompanied by instructions from the Department of State, addressed to the marshal of this judicial district.

Under these circumstances, I have deemed it unnecessary to hurry the transmission of the copies of the indictment in question, and shall therefore mail them at this post office for the next mail packet.

Having been informed that persons are daily expected from St. Augustine and Nassau, who can testify more satisfactorily as to the identity of said negroes, and their escape to the Bahama islands, I shall wait their arrival, and expect to make you a further communication by the same mail, covering their depositions.

In fulfilment of your instructions, the marshal will repair to Nassau in the revenue cutter "Nautilus," of this station, as soon as she returns from St. Augustine, and can be fitted out.

I have the honor to be, sir, with the highest consideration, your obedient servant,

GEORGE W. MACRAE,

Attorney U. S. for the Southern Judicial District of Florida.

EXTREMELY RARE COPY OF "JOURNAL OF THE PROCEEDINGS OF A CONVENTION OF DELEGATES TO FORM A CONSTITUTION FOR THE PEOPLE OF FLORIDA", FIRST PRINTING OF FLORIDA CONSTITUTION, ST JOSEPH, FLORIDA, 1839.

[FLORIDA TERRITORY] Journal of the Proceedings of a Convention of Delegates to form a Constitution for the People of Florida, held at St. Joseph, December 1838 bound with Constitution, or Form of Government for the People of Florida. St. Joseph: printed at the "Times" office, 1839. First edition. Original three-quarter leather, gilded edge spine markings over blue boards with ink inscription on cover "For the Use of the President of the Senate / Executive Office". Inside front board has large presentation in pencil "G W MacRae to S R Mallory, 1845". George W. MacRae was President of the Florida Territorial Senate. Stephen R. Mallory was the U.S. Attorney in the Southern District of Florida at the time of Florida statehood in 1845 when book was presented. Mallory, of course, went on to be Senator from Florida from 1850 until secession in 1861 and was soon appointed Confederate Secretary of the Navy. First edition of the first constitution of Florida, present here with the proceedings of the convention that took place in December 1838 in the Panhandle town of St. Joseph. An extremely rare work, only two copies have been sold at auction that we can find and only 12 copies found in institutions. Parke-Bernet auction sold copy from the Eberstadt Collection, 1967, and most recently a trimmed copy sold at Doyle's April 15, 2015 as Lot 94 for $12,500 including commission. Here's an opportunity to find an ultra rare early Florida imprint not listed in Howe's, Sabin #24870. SIZE: 9-7/8" x 6-3/8", 120; Constitution 20 pp. PROVENANCE: Direct descent from Stephen R. Mallory. CONDITION: Bindings worn with leather corners mostly gone, end-papers are original, foxed and damp-stained, especially dark on the first and last pages. Boards are sound and solid with some warpage, scuffing and staining as can be seen in photos. 51416-3 (8,000-12,000)

STATE COURTS

Prior to 1845 when Florida was admitted into the Union, all law business was transacted in the territorial court, and it was not for some time thereafter that there was any business of importance in the State courts.

After Statehood, justice was administered by a Circuit and a Probate Court. Monroe county was in the Southern Circuit, and the first judge was William Marvin, who was appointed in December, 1845. He held the office only three months, and was succeeded by Judge George W. Macrae. In January, 1848, Judge Joseph B. Lancaster assumed the judicial toga. He was succeeded in 1853 by Judge Thomas F. King, who was followed in 1865 by Judge James Gettis.

In 1865 James Magbee became judge. During his incumbency there occurred one of the most remarkable proceedings ever witnessed in a court of justice. He was incarcerated in the city prison in Tampa for being drunk, and while there issued a writ of habeas corpus, commanding the mayor, J. E. Lipscomb, to bring the body of James Magbee before His Honor, James Magbee, to show by what authority he was depriving him of his liberty, and caused it to be served on the mayor, who treated it with merited contempt. When the judge was released, he issued a rule for the mayor to show cause why he should not be punished was to be elected for a term of four years by the assembly.

The election of circuit judges occurred in July, 1845, and resulted as follows: Western circuit, George S. Hawkins of Apalachicola, (Samuel W. Carmack and Dillon Jordan also receiving support); Southern circuit, William Marvin of Key West, (the other nominees being L. W. Smith and Adam Gordon); Eastern district, Isaac H. Bronson of St. Augustine, (Joseph B. Lancaster, opposing candidate); Middle district, Thomas Baltzell, of Tallahassee, on the thirty-sixth ballot, his opponents being Sampson H. Butler, Joseph McCants and Thomas Randall. Mariano D. Papy, afterward a distinguished lawyer, was chosen as clerk of the supreme court, and Joseph D. Branch was the first attorney-general.

The solicitors general, representing the State in each circuit, were Caraway Smith, T. J. Heir, Felix G. Livingston and R. F. Brantley. Judge Marvin declining to accept the position, George W. Macrae was appointed for the Southern district, and upon the declination of Mr. Bronson, Thomas Douglas was chosen for the Eastern district. These gentlemen, Hawkins, Baltzell, Macrae and Douglas, composed the first supreme court of the State, which convened in January, 1846, Macrae acting pro tempore until his appointment in the following March. A joint select committee was appointed by the legislature in December, 1845, to make provision for the session, in the yet unfinished capitol, and the report made is of interest. "They have examined the room," they said, "and find it necessary and proper that a judges' stand, fourteen feet wide and six feet deep, should be made; also a clerk's table six feet long, a small desk with pigeon holes on the clerk's table; one circular table fronting the bench, fourteen feet long, for the convenience of the bar, six arm chairs, one dozen common chairs, and two benches, twenty feet each, for spectators." With this equipment the court began its sessions, and neither its dignity nor the soundness of its decisions were impaired by the lack of luxury, a lack which has continued, it may be said, to the present day. The seal of the court was at first that formerly used by the Territorial court of appeals, but in January, 1847, a seal was adopted by act of legislature.

ORGANIZATION OF THE JUDICIAL DEPARTMENT.

The election of Judges of the Circuit Courts of this State, came on in the General Assembly, during the present week.

Col. Geo. S. Hawkins, of Apalachee, was duly elected Judge of the Western Circuit, after the third balloting, over Dillon Jordan and S. W. Carmack.

For the Southern Circuit, William Marvin, was elected Judge after the fifth balloting, over L. W. Smith and G. W. Macrae.

For the Eastern Circuit, J. H. Bronson, was elected on the first balloting, over Col. J. B. Lancaster.

For Judge of the Middle Circuit, there was a very exciting and protracted contest. The principal competitors were Thomas Baltzell, of Tallahassee, Sampson H. Butler, of Madison, and Joseph M'Cants, of Jefferson. The ballotings were persisted in for three several days, before a constitutional majority for either candidate was obtained. For the first sixteen ballotings, the contest lay principally between Col. Butler and Mr. Baltzell. Col. Butler's name was withdrawn by his friends, and Mr. M'Cants was nominated. On the third day's trial, and after thirty-six ballotings; was declared to be duly elected.

On Wednesday the General Assembly proceeded to the election of Solicitors for the several Circuits, but after several ballotings for Solicitor of the Western Circuit, the matter was deferred until Thursday, when it resulted in the election of J. Caraway Smith, Solicitor of the Western Circuit; Thomas J. Heir, of the Middle;

GENERAL ASSEMBLY.

The Legislature met yesterday, (Monday,) but a quorum not being in attendance, adjourned over until to-day.

The two Houses met this morning, and proceeded to organize themselves for business. This was done in the House of Representatives, by the election of Mr. BROWN, of Columbia County, Speaker, and Mr. PAPY, Secretary.

In the Senate, Messrs. FAIRBANKS and KELLY were put in nomination for President; but in a number of ballots, neither receiving a majority, the names of both were withdrawn, and Mr. MAYS, of Madison, unanimously elected. Mr. ARCHER was chosen Secretary.

Being waited on by a Joint Committee of the two Houses, the GOVERNOR transmitted, by his private Secretary, the following Message:

Gentlemen of the Senate, and House of Representatives:

A vacancy occurring in the Judgeship of the Southern Judicial Circuit, as also in the Solicitorship of the same Circuit, since the adjournment of the last General Assembly, these appointments have been filled temporarily by the appointment of the Hon. George W. Macrae as Judge, and Thomas King, Esq., as Solicitor, whose terms of service will expire with the close of the present session of the General Assembly.

THE NEWS.

JACKSONVILLE, MARCH 20, 1846.

¶ We learn from the Tallahassee "Sentinel" that the Hon. GEORGE W. MACRAE, President of the last Territorial Senate, and late U. S. District Attorney for the Southern District, has been appointed by the Governor of this State, Judge of the Southern Judicial Circuit.

The "Sentinel" remarks that Judge MACRAE, is a young and comparatively new man, and that he has mingled little in the political strifes of the Territory or State. Much is therefore to be expected from the impartial manner in which he will discharge the duties of the office to which he has been called. We trust that his appointment will give satisfaction to the Bar and to the public generally.

In 1839 Hawkins was elected to Florida's first Territorial Senate and in 1841 served as its president.³⁵ He also served as district attorney for the Western District of Florida.³⁶ Justice Hawkins served as circuit court judge until his resignation in 1853.³⁷ Then, as he had prophesized, he was elected Florida's representative to the United States Congress in 1856.³⁸ He later served as a district court judge during the Civil War.³⁹

George W. McCrae, the fourth member of the first supreme court, served as circuit judge for the Southern Circuit until 1848, when he was defeated by Joseph Lancaster in an election for that position.⁴⁰ Justice Lancaster, an early Florida settler, was appointed by President John Quincy Adams to the Legislative Council of 1825,⁴¹ and was a justice of the peace for St. John's County in 1826. The following year he served as judge of the Alachua County Court.⁴² Justice Lancaster's career was interrupted by the Seminole War, in which he fought as a captain. After the war, he resumed his career in public service, holding positions as chief clerk of both the legislative council and the State House of Representatives.⁴³ He was also the legislative representative of Duval County, and later the Speaker of the House, before his election to the bench in 1847.⁴⁴ After retiring from the court, he settled in Tampa and was later elected the city's mayor.⁴⁵

As circuit judges, these four men comprised Florida's supreme court from 1846 to 1850. On the first day of the supreme court's first session in January, 1846, the court upheld its jurisdiction to review cases pending in the former territorial court of appeals.⁴⁶ The appellee had challenged the court's jurisdiction to review cases pending in the territorial courts, asserting that the admission of Florida into the Union "was a virtual repeal of the act creating those Legislative Courts, [including the Court of Appeals] . . .

without any saving of proceedings commenced and pending before it."⁴⁷ Therefore, "[i]n such a case the whole power and authority cease, and the Court cannot proceed with what may have been commenced."⁴⁸ The supreme court rejected the appellee's challenge, however, and upheld its jurisdiction to review the case, holding:

A question to the jurisdiction is at all times a delicate one, and would have influenced the Court to pause and hesitate, before assuming it in this case, if the power had been at all doubtful. But we see no room to question the jurisdiction. The act of the Legislature of the State, organizing the Supreme Court, is imperative, "that all cases now pending in said Court of Appeals, shall be transferred to said Supreme Court, and tried, and decided therein, and thereby, except cases cognizable by the Federal Courts."⁴⁹

In another case of first impression, the court considered the effect of split (2-2) decisions, ruling that in such cases, the supreme court must affirm the judgment of the lower court.⁵⁰

In January, 1851 the Florida legislature created a new supreme court independent from the circuit courts. The chief justice and the two associate justices of this new supreme court were each to be elected by the legislature to serve for a term of eight years.⁵¹ Walker Anderson was elected as the court's chief justice, and Leslie Thompson and A. G. Semmes as the associate justices.⁵² These three men were important in establishing the Supreme Court of Florida as an independent judicial body.

Chief Justice Anderson, who, as a legislative representative had sponsored the bill establishing the independent supreme court, was born in Petersburg, Virginia. He attended the University of North Carolina and later studied law under his uncle, Judge Duncan Cameron, in Raleigh, North Carolina. In 1836 he moved to Pensacola and began practicing law.⁵³ Before his election to the supreme court, Justice Anderson served as a delegate to the Constitutional Convention of 1838-1839, as the United States District At-

The Floridian of the 10th announces the re-appointment by the Governor, of the hon. George Macrae as Judge of the Southern Circuit. The Floridian expresses the opinion that this is a most judicious appointment. "Judge M." says the Floridian "has, we learn, been highly acceptable in the Western Circuit, where he last presided, and is highly esteemed as an upright, honest man, and of good legal abilities." If we are not misinformed, Judge M. gave equal satisfaction in the Middle Circuit as in the Western

THE NEWS.

JACKSONVILLE, JANUARY 29, 1847.

SUPREME COURT.

The bench of the Supreme Court of the State of Florida having been filled by the appointment of Judge Macrae, the Court has been enabled to proceed to business. We state from the Floridian the following list of cases that have been argued.

Bryan Croom, vs. Joseph Swan, Executor of John Oliver, argued and submitted, January 11.

Stephen D. Fernandez, vs. R. K. Call, Governor, &c. for use James Turner, writ of error dismissed for want of prosecution, Jan. 14.

James T. Archer, Assignee of Wm. H. Francis, vs. Adm'rs. of Samuel H. Duval, argued and submitted, January 14.

Abner M. R. Session, for use H. Sharp, vs. John Stephens, argued and submitted, January 5th.

Eli Horn, vs. David Gartman, on petition for rehearing, submitted January 5th.

A. T. Bennett, vs. Oscar Filyau, argued and submitted, January 14.

Philip Fraser and Wife, vs. Charles Willey, argued and submitted, January 13.

JUDGE FOR THE SOUTHERN CIRCUIT.— We learn from the Floridian, that, on the 11th inst. the Hon. GEORGE W. MACRAE was reappointed Judge for the Southern Circuit by Gov. MOSELEY.— It is much to be regretted that the Legislature was unable at its recent session to elect any one to hold this responsible office, nevertheless the choice which has been made by the Governor will be approved by all, and, in view of the struggle at the late session, was the only one which should have been made. The Floridian remarks that Judge MACRAE has been highly acceptable in the Western Circuit where he last presided, and is highly esteemed as an upright, honest man, and of good legal abilities; the greatest requisites for an acceptable Judge.

the Constitution and laws of the State make it? All judgments are by operation of law, but can the law operate to make a judgment in the absence of, or without a Court?

“The record however, does not in my judgment, sustain the allegation that the judgment was without a Court.

PHILIP FRAZER and WIFE, adm’rs, &c.,

vs.

} January Term- 1847.

CHARLES WILEY.

Present HON. THOS DOUGLAS, Chief Justice, HON. THOS. BALTZELL, HON. GEO. S. HAWKINS, HON. GEO. W. MACRAE, Justices.

This day came the parties by their attorneys, and the transcript of the record of the judgment aforesaid being seen and inspected, and said parties being fully heard by counsel, and the court being equally divided in opinion, it is considered by the court that the said judgment be affirmed,” &c.

The question is asked as not admitting of any doubt, “Is not the case left in the same situation in which it came up- leaving the questions of law involved in it as open questions, and subject to future adjudications?” Can it be the design to say, that the case is open in the Circuit Court, and to be tried there again? This would seem to be the fair inference, for the Supreme Court had refused to take farther action of it, by declaring the judgment of the former term valid. We have, however, thought this scarcely possible. If yet subject to future adjudication, it must be by the Supreme Court: and if so, the question arises, why was the motion of the plaintiff to reinstate his case overruled?

Again, it is said that the opinion of the Court in such a case is not authority. With due deference- this question is more appropriate for the tribunal before which the decision may hereafter be quoted. Courts do not usually attach to their opinions when delivered the estimate to be placed upon them, nor pledge themselves in advance to recognize or reject any case as authority. But why is this case not authority? As the judgment of the Circuit Court, expressing the law of the case, until reversed it is authority—when that judgment is affirmed by the Supreme Court is there a diminution of its authority? The Judge of the Circuit Court declared the law of the case, the Supreme Court affirm the judgment, thereby giving the sanction of that tribunal to the law as declared by the Court below.

A reversal obviously would have destroyed the authority of the case; but that an affirmance has this effect, is to confound and utterly annihilate the meaning and sense of terms. This would be to place the Court in the contradictory position of maintaining by their judgment the right of one of the parties under the law which by the qualification attached to their opinion they maintain that he is not entitled to—in other words affirm the case as to the parties, but reverse it as authority for other cases and this upon the ground that the “Court stands opposed two to two—or is divided and in such case it is said there is a perfect mathematical balance with no preponderance on either side.” With due deference we cannot admit the propriety of this language, we do not admit that a Court can be divided. By law a majority of the judges is sufficient to transact business and the agreement of more than half of these will be sufficient to decide a case although this majority may be less than half the number of the judges, thus in a judicial body of twelve, seven present would be a quorum and four concurring as to a case would render the judgment though in fact constituting only one third of the judges. In a body consisting of five judges a quorum consists of three and two of these concurring render the judgment of the Court. In Legislative assemblies this is also the case. In the instances of the judicial bodies above stated the four in the one case and two in the other constitute the court, in the Legislature the majority of the quorum constitute the Legislature and this by operation of law. A concurrence of a sufficient number of judges to do business, to give judgments to decide cases then constitutes the Court and in case of concurrence with them although there may be disagreement or division amongst the judges there is no division of the Court. This is the law of its organization.

A similar law prevails in the structure and organization of Appellate Courts, and Courts of Error of the last resort, where there is an equal division of the judges. In such cases by the settled rule the judges in favor of affirmance constitute the Court, there is then by operation of law an affirmance of the judgment, a declaration by the Court that the judgment of the Court below is right and must be carried into execution. Such is the case in the House of Lords in England, Court of Errors of New York—of Maryland. In this Court also as announced in the present case and repeated again in the case of Williams and Moseley the same law prevails. In cases depending in other Courts it is a principle “where the judges are divided the mover takes nothing by his motion, there is no judgment,” the invari-

Cobb*, 10 Ga. 445, the rule nisi was defective because the names of the administrators of the deceased co-obligors were not stated therein and because it did not appear on the face of the rule that either of the parties defendant resided in the county of De Kalb. The rule in this case, omitting formal parts, was in the following form, to wit: "It appearing to the Court, by the petition of Humphrey W. Cobb, and copy bond and affidavit thereto annexed, that the original bond was executed by said Lemuel Cobb, Jesse F. Cleveland and Benjamin B. Avery, and that the original bond has been destroyed by fire, and that said Humphrey W. Cobb is interested in the establishment of the same, as he is one of the heirs-at-law of Humphrey Cobb, whose name is mentioned in said bond, and upon whose estate the said Lemuel Cobb was appointed the administrator, and the said Humphrey W. Cobb prays the establishment of said copy bond in lieu of the original so lost: It is therefore ordered, that said Lemuel Cobb, Jesse F. Cleveland, or their administrators, and Benjamin B. Avery, show cause, if any they have, by the first day of the next term of this Court, why the said copy bond should not be established in lieu of the original bond; and it is further ordered, that a copy of this rule be served personally on the administrators of the said Lemuel Cobb and Jesse F. Cleveland, and on said Avery, if to be found within this State, and if not, that it be published in one of the public gazettes of this State three months previous to the next term of this Court."

This indenture, made this third day of November, one thousand eight hundred and forty, between Henry Jones, of the county of Columbia, and State of Florida, of the one part, and Caroline Mattair, youngest daughter of the before named Henry Jones, of the same county and State, of the other part, witnesseth, that the said Henry Jones, for and in consideration of the natural love and affection which he has and bears unto the said daughter Caroline Mattair, and also for and in consideration of the sum of one dollar to him in hand paid by the said daughter Caroline, at and before the sealing and delivery hereof, the receipt whereof is hereby acknowledged, have given, granted and enfeoffed and confirmed unto the said Caroline Mattair, wife of Henry Mattair, and the heirs of her body, the following description of property, to wit: a negro man named Primus, aged about twenty-three years; a negro woman, named Clarissa, aged about 17 years, and a negro man named William, aged about 12 years, the said Caroline Mattair and her immediate offspring to have and to hold the above described property to their own proper use and behoof forever.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto placed my seal and affixed my signature the time and date above stated.

A PIONEER

And believing that it will be of some historical value as well as of interest generally to know the names of those who were the first to venture forth in the search of gold, and by whose energy and labor the foundations of a great state were laid, and also a general prosperity created throughout the entire country, I have therefore prefixed to the work the names of those that I have been able to obtain, numbering about 35,000, and including among them the names of several thousand who are now living in the various States of the Union.

For Easterners, sailing to the gold fields was a dangerous and stormy voyage that lasted five to seven months. Vessels sailed around Cape Horn at the southern tip of South America, some 14,000 miles in all. Wealthier travelers could save months by boarding steamships for Panama. There they crossed through tropical jungles to the Pacific Coast to catch ships bound north for San Francisco.

<https://www.ctexplored.org/horace-wells-inventor-of-the-improved-shower-bath/>

On board the ship with Macrae, Gilbert Hills.

Any good design requires more than an idea; it needs someone able to translate the idea into a viable product. Wells clearly understood this, as he prefaced his description of the shower bath with the statement "To enable others skilled in the art to make and use my invention... ." Just such a man was Gilbert Hills, a 27-year-old from East Hartford who operated a tinsmith shop on lower State Street in Hartford. According to an attached label Hills both manufactured and retailed this shower bath. It seems likely that he modified the design by providing for a tin holding tank above the shower head which would be activated by pulling a chain linked to a drain plug, a linkage not unlike that found in modern toilet valves. The manufacturer of the 83-inch-tall wooden shower stall, with its fashionable Empire styling and rosewood faux grain surface, is unknown.

Just how much personal collaboration existed between Wells and Hills is unknown. Horace Wells moved to New York City in 1847 where, severely depressed over his perceived failures, he committed suicide in January 1848. Gilbert Hills continued to work as a tinsmith and manufacturer of the shower bath until the spring of 1849 when, apparently succumbing to gold rush fever, he sailed on May 21, 1849 from New York aboard the bark Alice Tarlton, bound for adventure in the California gold fields. It is unclear whether he ever reached the gold fields, as evidenced by the following obituary which appeared in the Hartford Courant on June 13, 1850: "At San Francisco, April 21, of dysentery, Mr. Gilbert Hills, late of this city, aged 29."

Published by Geo. W. Macrae and W. Bartlett.

The title of this paper is taken from an entry No. 223 in a sale catalogue of the American Art Association of a sale February 1, 1921. I have not seen these numbers nor in fact but two or three issues of this newspaper, no file being in existence, as far as known. In March it was appearing as the Daily Journal of Commerce.

A prospectus was issued January 18, stating that a daily would be published, Monday, January 22, but it only appeared the next day on foolscap paper. Bartlett brought the press from Florida, and Macrae was also from Florida, having been a judge of the supreme court there.

CALIFORNIA IMPRINTS

Early in February, John S. Robb arrived in San Francisco with two presses, and February 19 entered into a partnership with Bartlett, Macrae either having retired previously or at that time. W. G. Marcy is also stated to have been a partner at this time, but the firm name was Bartlett and Robb.

May 4, the paper was burned out, but appeared the next day and was shortly enlarged.

June 14, it was again burned out, and publication was not resumed until July 25, Bartlett being then the sole owner, Robb having gone to Stockton.

The Alta, February 3, 1851, states that the Journal of Commerce has ceased to exist, Bartlett having taken an interest in a morning paper. Kemble says it was last issued February 1, 1851.

Some time in the spring of 1850 the title was changed to Daily Journal of Commerce, which title it continued to bear until its dissolution.

A steamer edition was issued and possibly a weekly edition, but I have seen no copy of the latter.

No file of this is known to exist. I have located only a few copies in the Library of Congress, namely, March 15, 18, May 15, October 10, 25, December 17, all of 1850.

Historical Perspective on Government and Law from California as I Saw It: First-Person Narratives of California's Early Years, 1849 to 1900

It was August 1848 before the United States Senate ratified the treaty ending the Mexican War and recognizing the transfer of California to American hands. Local Army commanders, "Forty-eighters," and Hispanic rancheros all waited anxiously for details of the form of territorial government California would enjoy. When no news arrived, local residents took matters in their own hands, with mass meetings as early as December 1848 debating California's political future. As tens of thousands of "Forty-Niners" joined the rush, the need became more pressing. Congress and the President did nothing, and in September 1849, forty-eight delegates met in Monterey to draw up a state constitution. The document was closely modeled on the constitutions of Iowa and New York, the home states of many members of the convention, and it made California a "free" state from which slavery would be excluded. The frame of government was ratified by popular vote on November 13, and state officials were chosen the same day. While Eastern Congressmen and Representatives argued over whether and how to admit this new free state, Californians got on with the business of finding gold and making money.

In the mining camps, the miners themselves were responsible for local affairs. In only a few years, they worked out rules governing the discovery and exploitation of mineral resources that were later incorporated into state and federal statutes. As for criminal law, miners and local townspeople were equally efficient in dealing out their own form of justice. As towns sprang up near the camps, newly appointed officials were appointed to impose order.

Back East, established forces of morality and order like the major Protestant churches were concerned about the society to which the states of the Atlantic seaboard and Midwest were sending their young men and women. Sensing that California would be in desperate need of moral guidance, "home mission" boards of these churches sent clergyman west to minister to the souls of miners, saloonkeepers, peddlers, and merchants in California's booming towns and cities and isolated mining camps. Finally, on September 9, 1850, President Fillmore signed the bill that gave California statehood. However, state government did not automatically bring law and order to California. In San Francisco, local citizens became so impatient with the inability or unwillingness of local officers to enforce the law that they formed a "Vigilance Committee" in 1851. By the time that the committee disbanded at the end of September, they had hanged four men, handed fifteen over to the police for trials, and whipped or deported twenty-nine more. The San Francisco experience inspired vigilance committees in other towns and mining camps. The apparent reforms brought by the 1851 San Francisco vigilantes were short-lived, and when the city's marshals and one of its newspaper editors were shot down in 1856, the second San Francisco Vigilance Committee was formed, this time even seizing arms from the local state militia.

We take the following letter from the San Francisco Journal of Commerce and Daily Bulletin, of February 1st :

AUBURN, January 18, 1850.

* * * Since you left I have made seven hundred dollars, and our lead is yet rich. Where we dug all summer in the bed, the banks have proved extremely rich. H. & H. are averaging one hundred dollars per day; L. seventy-five dollars; C. one hundred dollars; and all along down about three to five ounces to two men per day. On the bank of our old lead a boy knocked out a ragged chunk of sixteen ounces. G. and I had it in our hands. Yourself must have dug within two feet of this chunk when we first took the hole, and you worked out toward the northwest corner. I think I shall get about $1500 by March, if lucky as I am now. If I have opportunity I will send you my funds, to forward home per Livingston's express. This day two men took four hundred dollars out of three pans full of dirt on our ravine. It is literally thronged. The whole road which runs by it is being dug up. Strange, most strange! We left the cream and were treading it under our feet, while washing the worthless dirt we threw up.

The Journal contains a glowing article on the condition and prospects of California. It estimates the number of miners at 30,000 in a comfortable condition and good health. The average amount of gold obtained by each man is set down at $10 per day, and thinks that from May 1st, 1849, to February 1st, 1850, there have been on an average 20,000 miners at work. This would give the sum of $46,800,000 as the amount taken from the mines of California during nine months. We take the following paragraphs from the Journal :

Large shipments of gold dust have been made to Europe direct, to China, Sandwich Islands, Oregon, Mexico, South America and the United States, in all say twenty-five millions. The amount of treasure now collected in California may be estimated at 25 to 30 millions.

It is a startling fact that in San Francisco alone, the banks of the gamblers contain not less than one million of dollars in coin, or about one-fifth the amount usually held by all the banks in the city of New York. It must also be remembered that in Sacramento city, Stockton, the Pueblo, and throughout the mining regions, wherever any number of people are collected, gamblers and their banks are to be found. As yet there is no indication of any diminution in the yield of the mines. All accounts agree that an immense region of country, rich as any heretofore discovered, yet remains to be worked. A gentleman of intelligence recently returned from a tour throughout the northern diggings, states that the miners are now averaging more per day than they were in the summer months, and it is generally believed that the tremendous flow of water through the ravines, gulches and streams this winter, will change the surface of the earth about the old diggings so that new and rich deposits will be found throughout the country that had been worked over.

It is evident that the number engaged in mining this year will greatly exceed that of the last, and while there is room for all to work, the yield of the mines will increase in proportion.

We understand that

We understand that no proposals were put in on the day advertised, for the State loan lately authorized and directed by the Legislature; but we learn from a private source, on which we rely, that several individuals attended at San José on that day ready to advance the amount required in a mode of contract and agreement different from that advertised, to which last, it seems, they objected. Meantime, it appears that there is a bill before the Legislature for the issue of State scrip.

From April 12, 1849 to January 29, 1850, inclusive, the passenger arrivals at the port of San Francisco, were as follows :

	Males.	Females.
American	29,847	919
Foreign.....	8,620	502
Total.....	38,467	1421
		39,888

These arrived at San Francisco in 850 vessels, 467 American and 318 foreign. The number of vessels is exclusive of army and navy vessels and steamers. The amount of tonnage arrived during the above period, was

American.....	228,429
Foreign.....	55,809
Total.....	284,238

On January 29, Gen. P. F. Smith and staff arrived at San Francisco from his headquarters at Sonoma

A correspondent of the Alta California says that lumps weighing half an ounce had been picked up in the streets of Sacramento City. One man collected thirty dollars in a single day.

A Frenchman was said to have picked up, in the Stanislaus river, a piece of gold weighing twenty-two pounds.

The "San Francisco Journal of Commerce and Daily Bulletin" estimates the number of miners in California at 30,000. That paper thinks that there have been on an average 20,000 miners at work from the 1st of May, 1849, to the 1st of February, 1850, and that the average amount of gold obtained by each man is at least $10 per day. According to this estimate, the amount taken from the mines during that time can not fall much short of $50,000,000. The following paragraphs upon this subject are taken from the Journal.

Large shipments of gold dust, have been made to Europe direct, to China, Sandwich Islands, Oregon, Mexico, South America and the United States, in all say twenty-five millions. The amount of treasure now collected in California may be estimated at twenty-five to thirty millions.

NEWSPAPERS ON THE PACIFIC.—We have at this time in our office the first printing press established on this coast. It is the more a curiosity when we reflect upon the singular eventful scenes through which it has been made to do the bidding of a variety of masters, and while too we contemplate its appearance, which denotes but hard usage, not the slow wear of time. It may not be uninteresting to our readers to revert to the past history of the press in the Pacific, possessed, as we are, of information which is in every way reliable respecting its early growth and more recent advancement. We have made up from various sources the following comprehensive account of the publications on the Pacific. We are indebted to the Honolulu press for a portion of this summary :

The Journal of Commerce and Daily Bulletin, published in this city from Jan. 1850 to present time. Editors, Bartlett & Robb.—Alta California.

SUPERIOR COURT OF SAN FRANCISCO.—The legislature met in convention, at 1 o'clock, P. M., on Friday last, for the election of a Chief Justice and two Associate Justices of the superior court of this city. The following is the result of their ballot :

For Chief Justice.
P. A. Morse received	22 votes.
G. W. Macrae "	16 "
For Associate Justices.
J. C. Smith received	37 votes.
H. C. Murray "	22 "
G. W. Macrae "	16 "

Whereupon P. A. Morse was declared duly elected Chief Justice, and Messrs. Smith and Murray Associate Justices of said court. The legislature has elected Lorenzo Hubbard as Resident Physician of San Francisco; Dr. John L. Thorp as Health Commissioner, and Dr. James H. Rogers as Health Officer.

New Agricultural Building at Sacramento.

We have paid a visit to the new Agricultural Pavilion at Sacramento, which is now approaching a readiness for the fair. We find it a very stately structure, adding much to the beauty of the city, and acting as a stimulus to many valuable improvements in the vicinity around it. In company with Gen. Redington and the architect, we made a particular visit to note the progress of a building in which within two short months such vast interests are to be represented, and where so many thousands of our citizens are to congregate. How much depends upon the influences which this building and the coming fair shall cast upon our State.

We have before stated, the building is two stories high, 108 feet front on M street, by 140 feet on Sixth. The first story 14 feet in the clear, is intended for the exhibition room of agricultural implements, manufactures, and heavy articles, carriages, wagons, etc., etc.

The second story, is 100 feet wide, 120 feet long, without pillar or post, a splendid lofty spacious arena, opening up to the dome, which shows one of the largest and most perfect entire self-sustaining roofs on the Pacific coast, being one entire span, made on the strongest and most perfect manner, having been put to the test before raising. Some idea of the majesty and beauty of such a saloon as the one in preparation can be had by bearing in mind that the size of the saloon is 100 feet by 120 clear without an obstruction, and in height up to the lofty and richly finished dome or roof.

The Pavilion is built of brick, made near the building, using nearly a million of handsome bricks. The door and window caps and sills are of Folsom granite, and the entire mason work is done in the most thorough manner. The roof is to be covered with West's Patent Roofing Material to make it water-proof.

The front of the Pavilion is to be finished by a recess of 10 feet for an entrance to second story by a flight of 23 steps to the landing, the finished front presenting three large entrance doors, of much taste and beauty. On the right and left, heavy buttresses, upon which neat pillars rise, fill the balance of the front, giving rooms in the first and second story for committee rooms, each wing on cornices being 30 feet each.

The walls of the building are 17 inches thick on the first story, and 13 inches in the second. The second story, or saloon, is the room for the grand exhibition. The first story has main entrance doors on the alley for receiving goods, and several other entrances for visitors, while the grand hall is entered by the three spacious doors on the M street front. A spacious side-walk of twenty feet on Sixth and M streets will give it a clear opening. There is a lot of ground of fifty feet wide still left for farther use by and by, as may be wanted. The streets on Sixth and M are to be immediately graded in the best style, which will give a much finer set off to this really noble building; and, although we ourselves would much rather have seen this structure at some other point where twenty or thirty acres of ground could be embellished, yet now that it is reared, now that the work is near to a consummation, we hope and trust great good will come of it.

We are assured by what we saw that Sacramentans now see that it is for their interest to help on such a work, and they are now earnestly engaged and give it a hearty lift. Although the executive committee of the State Society are scattered, and cannot all be in the city, we find that Gen. Redington and Judge McCrae, of Butte Co., are constantly at work, and faithfully doing their duty, and they deserve much credit for the time they devote, as these officers do not receive any salary, yet work well; and we always like to give due credit to all men.

GREAT EXPEDITION BY MAIL.—We received about the 10th of June, a letter from "Smith's Ranch," Bodega, dated Sept. 21, 1857, signed by William Hearst, making inquiries respecting a farm. Now friend Hearst, you will excuse us from any seeming delay. Twenty-one months is a considerable time, we know, but we only heard from you as mentioned.

Butte County is a county in northern California. In the 2010 census, the population was 220,000. The county seat is Oroville. Butte County comprises the Chico, CA Metropolitan Statistical Area. It is in the California Central Valley, north of the state capital of Sacramento.

LETTER FROM ALCATRAZ.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE APPEAL.]

ALCATRAZ ISLAND, July 28th, 1869.

Occasionally, we are disposed to chronicle a day on the Island. The general round of business is a sameness. First in the morning, is reveille, then half an hour later is breakfast call, then sick call, followed by the change of guards every two hours during the day, and finally taps at 9 o'clock in the evening when the lights are put out and silence reigns supreme till morning. Of late, the Pacific Railroad having brought to the State so many strangers, our usual quietness has been considerably disturbed. Scarce a week passes that fresh importations do not visit Alcatraz either singly, or in crowds, in their round of sight seeing.

Some three weeks ago the Committee of Ways and Means visited the Island, being escorted by General Ord the Division Commander. About a week ago the General introduced the Chicago Commercial Party, and this morning he visited us again, having in company our own distinguished Admiral Farragut, Senator Hendricks, General Alexander, Col. Maloney, Col. Wallace, Judge McCrae and others. This party had made the rounds of the harbor, receiving a salute of fifteen guns at each post in honor of the brave Admiral, and were conducted through the batteries, prisons, &c., of Alcatraz by Brig. Gen. Robertson, Post Commander.

Admiral Farragut, is a small well preserved man or about seventy-five, appeared in good health, and exhibited no marked evidences of age except his hair is thin and considerably frosted. He is remarkably easy, cheerful, polite and agreeable. Few men have lived to serve their country so long and faithfully as he. Chance, however, has very much to do in making or unmaking men. An unpropitious move at Charleston and our now triumphant Farragut would have been forgotten. So with all great men made so by circumstances. First the opportunity is afforded. Second, "there is a tide in the affairs of men (and waters) which if taken at the flood leads on to fortune," but if taken too early or too late misfortune is the consequence. Very likely if Gen. Grant had been cast upon an adverse current in place of Gen. McClellan early in the war, the latter may have been the successful man at last. But chance circumstances and fate determined otherwise. But, no matter, success was attained and the honor fairly won by the heroes who passed through the ordeal fires.

We were observing that Admiral Farragut had served the country long and to good purpose. He commenced with fortune and it seems to have followed. He was a midshipman under Commodore Perry during the war of 1812, and received his commission at the age of fifteen, and has now held a commission in the United States Navy for fifty-nine years. Long may he yet live to enjoy the fruits of an active and useful life.

This evening the Admiral will be serenaded at his hotel. No doubt it will be a noisy, if not, a grand affair. The bands from all the posts will be present, and probably they will be joined by the bands in the city. The steamer is now at the wharf whistling for passengers, but preferring rest we shall remain at home and forego the musical treat certain to await those present. ADIOS.

RAILROADS AND GRAIN.—The Bulletin of Friday says:

The California Pacific Railroad carried from Woodland, last week, 1,000 tons of grain. On one day of this week the road delivered at Vallejo 370 tons of grain, making twenty-seven car loads. This railway runs for its whole length from Vallejo to Sacramento, 50 miles, and on the Marysville

The Late Judge McCrae.
 Judge P. A. McCrae, a pioneer resident of this county, died last Friday night at the Occidental Hotel, San Francisco. He was a native of North Carolina and came to this state in early days, and settled in Oroville, where he practiced his profession, until about 1864 when he retired, and since that time he has lived in the city. He made many friends while here who will grieve to hear of his death.

The Reaper.
 H. E. Robinson, an old pioneer of this city, died in Norwalk, Conn., last Friday, where he had been since last July. Well known and liked by his friends he led a retired life, passing his time in hotels. He leaves several millions of dollars. By strange coincidence, his most intimate friend here, Judge McCrae, died at the Occidental Hotel about the same time.
 Professor Charles Glover Pond died on Saturday evening in this city. He was known as one of our leading teachers of music, and was a brother of Wm. Pond, the New York publisher.

WALLACE – the name comes up in an early article 1828 as a match to our attorney from Prince William, VA and was his mother's maiden name. Taking a maiden name as a middle name was NOT an uncommon practice.

Is this the same Dade family that George had a relationship with in the Courts of Virginia back in 1820s?

Corresponding census for them in 1860 lists B.W. and Champe as Farmers. Is this the right guy!! He was born in Va! The fact that two other Macraes are buried there does not mean they were his wife and child.

Jeans, La.

MACRAE, George Wythe, banker, was born near Warrenton, Va., May 28, 1838, son of Bailey

Washington and Sarah Jane (Stuart) Macrae, of Scottish descent. His father, a man of superior character and education, was a large plantation owner, and his mother was a daughter of William Stuart, of Virginia. George W. Macrae was tutored in schools of his native town until, in 1849, his family removed to the neighborhood of Clarksville, Tenn., where he studied in the Masonic University of Tennessee (1853-54). In 1854 he began active life as clerk in a store at Clarksville, Tenn., and removing, in 1859, to Memphis, became associated with Dr. D. T. Porter in the wholesale grocery business, under the firm name of Porter & Macrae. The business was interrupted by the war of 1862, and during the next nine years Mr. Macrae was variously engaged until, in 1871, he again became associated with Dr. Porter's firm, which, in 1882, again assumed its original name and style. This firm, which was finally dissolved in 1896, was always noted for its prosperity and straightforward business dealing. Mr. Macrae has been president of the Memphis National Bank since 1894; is president of the Chickasaw Cooperage Co. since 1890, and is a stockholder, director and treasurer of the Artesian Water Co. of Memphis. He is a member and an elder of the Presbyterian church, and is an earnest supporter of its doctrines and benevolent activities. Mr. Macrae is one of the foremost business men of Memphis, and is widely noted for sound judgment, great executive ability and unfailing integrity. He has been twice married: first, on Sept. 13, 1866, to Fannie Morris, of Clarksville, Tenn., who died, Feb. 1, 1870, leaving one daughter, now Mrs. Walter White, of Memphis; second, on March 2, 1881, to Blanche, daughter of Dr. B. W. Avent, a prominent physician of Memphis, Tenn., by whom he has had five children.

TIME PERSPECTIVE:

On February 2, 1848, the far-flung province of California, long the outpost of Spanish advance on the Pacific, passed into the hands of the United States. The story is known to all. It is not necessary to recount the forces which brought this about.

FIRST LEGISLATURE CONVENES Thus was brought into being the First California Legislature. The day appointed for convening was Saturday, December 15, 1849, and the place chosen was San Jose. That winter was an unusually wet one, with a rainfall upward of 36 inches for the season. Compare this with our present average of 14 inches. The rains began on the night of October 28th, and by the 15th of December, the roads were so muddy that not enough Legislators were able to reach San Jose by that first day. The following Monday, however, December 17th, a quorum had arrived and the Legislature officially convened.

cisco, to be called the Superior Court of the City of San Francisco."

The Senate accepted the invitation of the Assembly to meet in Convention for the election of Judges of the Superior Court of San Francisco, with an amendment, fixing the hour for such election at 1 P.M., to-day, instead of half-past 4 P.M., to-day.

Mr. Heydenfeldt, from the Committee of Conference on the disagree ing votes of the two Houses, on the bill entitled "an Act concerning Offices," reported that the committee recommend that the Assembly concur in the Senate's 7th, 8th, and 14th amendments, and that the Senate recede from all their other amendments.

The Report was adopted.

On motion of Mr. Broderick, the vote by which the Senate yesterday indefinitely postponed Assembly bill entitled "an Act to provide for the permanent location of the Seats of Justice of the several counties," was re-considered, and the bill was amended, read the third time, and passed, the rules having been suspended for that purpose.

A message was received from the Assembly, informing the Senate that the Governor had notified the Assembly that he did, on yesterday, sign bills entitled "an Act concerning Volunteer or Independent Companies," "an Act defining the compensation of Clerks employed by the Secretary, Treasurer, and Comptroller of State," "an Act to incorporate the City of Los Angeles," "an Act establishing Recorders' Offices, and defining the duties of the Recorder and County Auditor," and "an Act to authorize the formation of Limited Partnerships."

Also, that the Assembly had concurred in the amendment of the Senate to the Assembly's proposition in relation to the hour of meeting in Convention, for the purpose of going into an election for Judges of the Superior Court of San Francisco.

Which report was received and concurred in.

A resolution was offered, that the Master of Marysville Lodge, No. 9, have power to appoint a Senior Warden for said Lodge, to serve the remainder of the Masonic year, (the S. W. being dead), and to act as such in this Grand Lodge; which was laid on the table for the present.

The Grand Master then read his Annual Address to the Grand Lodge, as follows:—

Brethren of the Grand Lodge of California:—

Another year has circled round, and brought us nearer to the great goal where all human beings must arrive; yet, through the benign and merciful goodness of our Supreme Grand Master, we are permitted to meet together, officers and representatives, to transact the business and interests of the banner of the ancient Order under which we are enlisted. Allow me to congratulate you on this occasion, that the mercies of the God of All have been extended to us,—that He, in His great mercy, has kept and protected us through the great perils of disease, contagion and travel,—and truly grateful must we be, and offer our humble praises to Him for His continued care in preserving us to meet together this day.

I believe the arch-enemy, Death, has made but little havoc among our ranks, and let us pray fervently that we, who are here assembled, and those we represent, may be permitted to run the full span of man's existence, and attain to the good old age of three score years and ten.

In commencing and carrying out this session, let us carefully keep in mind the charge so often inculcated in our Lodge rooms, that it is "good for brethren to dwell together in unity." Let us remember that Masonry is a science, inculcating a pure system of morality and virtue, based upon the practice of universal benevolence, and recognizing as the last, highest, and purest round of its moral ladder, Charity, the Heaven-born quality which not only beautifies, but adds lustre to all other virtues of our hearts. Recollect that around her followers Masonry throws a panoply which she forbids her children to raise, or tear aside with rudeness,—and when we are compelled to investigate a brother's character, she also commands us to do so with a tear of pity, and feeling of charity. Allow me to earnestly hope, that in your deliberations during this session, you may be aided with wisdom from on High, and be so guided by its power as to be enabled to spread the cement of brotherly love with the Master's trowel, as will heal all difficulties existing, and that we may close our labors in peace, good-will and harmony. *

As Deputy Grand Master at your last annual session, I directed the attention of the Grand Lodge to the propriety and necessity of adopting some measures

* That portion of the Address commencing here and ending on the 17th manuscript page, referring to the late difficulties with the Grand Master, was ordered not to be printed.—(Cv. Sec.)

Grand Divisions of the Sons of Temperance were established in California by 1853 according to the Sacramento Daily Union.

The 1849 Gold Rush in California made the state ripe for raucous behavior and insobriety. Miners, similar to soldiers and sailors on leave, often led solitary lives seeking riches and frequently ended up in taverns, hotels, and gambling palaces or tents, all of which served alcohol.

Various temperance movements emerged as a result of the Gold Rush in California. The Sons of Temperance was one of these organizations. Scholar Ralph Mann suggests that the Sons of Temperance offered men a rich symbolic haven outside the home and an alternative masculine image. In 1855, when Alexander was a member, this fraternal group supported a state bill on the total prohibition of alcohol. The law did not get passed, but the influence of this organization was clear.

Oct. 1, 1852. oct 1-1m

George W. Macrae was a founding member of Madison Lodge No. 23, located in Grass Valley, California. He seems to have been a member for only the year 1853 as his name drops off the rosters for the lodge in subsequent years.

Sometime in May 1848 the Grand Master of Indiana issued a Dispensation for a " Travelling Lodge for California to be known as Sierra Nevada Lodge." The members of this proposed Lodge were residents of La Fayette, Indiana . They opened their Lodge at Centerville, now Grass Valley, California, in 1849, and there the Lodge continued in active operation until May 1852. It was then transferred to California obedience with the name of Madison Lodge, No . 23, and as such it is still Working. See GOULD'S HISTORY OF FREEMASONRY THROUGHOUT THE WORLD VOLUME V. The Helen Hensley was built in San Francisco, under the superintendance of Capt. James Whitney, Jr., who was a joint owner with Col. S. J. Hensley, the late James Blair, E. C. M. Chadwick, and John Palk, the original proprietors. The Helen Hensley is built after the style of the magnificent Mississippi packets, with elegant cabins, state rooms, halls, etc., extending nearly the entire length of the boat, elevated above the main deck, and entirely disconnected with the freight-room and general business of the boat, and affording ample room for exercise and recreation, necessarily more restricted on boats differently constructed. She is propelled by two powerful high-pressure engines, and is not surpassed in speed by any boat upon the waters. Her superior accommodations, and the popular manners of Capt. Chadwick, have rendered the Hensley a favorite, doing full justice to the amiable and accomplished lady (Mrs. Samuel J. Hensley) from whom she derives her name. Dimensions: Length of keel, 175 feet; breadth of beam, 30 feet; depth of hold, 5½ feet; carrying capacity, 515 tons.

The history of the private bar of California in the nineteenth century involves a rush for gold, the creation of instant cities, the growth of agribusiness, industrialization, urbanization, and the role of lawyers in the socioeconomic process. More specifically, it is a history of frontier turmoil, fluid standards of practice, growing demand for specialization, increased professional education, and an emerging professional identity in a maturing state. This study covers the period 1850–1900 and identifies the “frontier bar” as attorneys entering practice in the first three decades of that period.

The professionalization of the bar has recently attracted scholarly attention.¹ Gerard W. Gawalt’s work on the Massachusetts bar has been particularly important because of his exhaustive research and careful use of collective biography.² This study of California’s bar combines collective biography with an analysis of the role and function of the bar in a rapidly changing socioeconomic setting.

Who constituted the California bar at a particular time and place is not subject to as precise an answer as a social scientist would desire. The federal census of 1900 recorded 4,278 individuals holding themselves out as attorneys, up from the 1,115 lawyers of 1870.³ The Roll of Attorneys in the Caliifornia State Archives in Sacramento has inscribed the names of 6,329 people admitted to practice for the period 1850 through 1900. Six hundred nineteen won admission in the 1850s, 2,412 in the 1890s, and 223 in 1900. Charles W. Palm reported in his Lawyers’ Directory of California that 2,206 attorneys were available to provide professional services in 1889.⁴ Palm’s directory was an early form of advertisement for attorneys who could afford inclusion, but it failed to include all persons in practice at the time. “Pile”; or, A Glance of the Monied Men of San Francisco and Sacramento County. Also an Accurate List of Lawyers, published in 1851, listed 153 persons practicing law in the two California instant cities.⁵ The Roll of Attorneys provided 164 names of admittees for 1850 and 1851. In the 1850s it was not unusual for men to practice law in local justice courts without being admitted to the bar.⁶ Bar admission required attainment of twenty-one years of age, “good moral character,” and “the necessary qualifications of learning and ability.”⁷ The justices of the peace these attorneys practiced before were not required to be lawyers and, in the early days of the frontier, were schooled only in experience and the American cultural tradition. Given the slippery early definitions of the bar, it is not easy to provide any precise numbers, but the extant figures do provide an adequate foundation for analysis.

One group of attorneys published their biographies in bar, county, and city histories. These 1,168 attorneys, which will be referred to hereafter as the elite group, provide the collective biographical data for this study.⁸ California’s elite frontier bar was a small percentage of the total number of lawyers admitted in California in the nineteenth century. One hundred twelve of the attorneys in this study gained admission to practice in the 1850s and 1860s. One hundred sixty joined the bar in the decade of the 1870s, 340 in the 1880s, and 529 in the last decade of the century. Of the lawyers that practiced in the nineteenth century, 402 were members of other state bars before joining the California bar. In the 1870s and 1880s the percentage of lawyers with prior bar admission was substantially higher than the percentage in the pre-1870 period (8 percent in the 1850s, 19 percent in the 1860s, 27 percent in the 1870s, 28 percent in the 1880s, and 18 percent in the 1890s).

The origins of the elite California bar in the nineteenth century shifted dramatically from East coast and southern states in the frontier period to California and the Midwest by the 1890s. The tide of migration of the 1850s contained lawyers as well as miners, merchants, and entrepreneurs. Of the attorneys admitted to the bar in the 1850s, 46 percent were born in the East, 28 percent in the old South, 11 percent in the Midwest, 11 percent in foreign countries, and 4 percent in the new Southwest. In the 1860s, lawyers from the East Coast and the Midwest accounted for 31 percent each of the total admitted in the decade. The South contributed 19 percent of the bar in the 1860s, the new Southwest 8 percent, foreign countries 8 percent, and California 3 percent. In the last three decades of the nineteenth century, California’s contribution to the bar increased steadily. In the 1870s, 14 percent of the admittees were born in California, in the 1880s, 30 percent, and in the 1890s, 35 percent. The Midwest’s contribution remained strong throughout the later period. In the 1870s, 23 percent of the admittees were Midwesterners, in the 1880s, 30 percent, and in the 1890s, 27 percent. For the last half of the century, California origins accounted for 27 percent of the bar, and Midwest origins, 27 percent. In each of these last three decades, the percentages for lawyers of East Coast and southern origins declined. Only the numbers of the foreign born remained fairly steady for all five decades, but they never contributed more than 11 percent in any decade.
